OLIVIA KALICINSKI

Strategy, creative and the systems that make them work.

GROWTH / CREATIVE / CRO

Profile

I launch and grow DTC businesses, connecting paid acquisition, creator-led creative, lifecycle and conversion. I lead the team, own the acquisition P&L and build the technology behind the work.

Six years in a family business, a marketing internship at L'Oréal and an independent visual arts practice inform how I combine commercial judgement with storytelling.

Current role

Head of Growth

Lets Fly / Comida de Dragão
Jan 2025 – present · Brazil

Launched the DTC brand of an insect-protein biotech. Lead four people across paid media, creative, creators and CRM; own acquisition, CRO, retention and the Shopify storefront.

- Inverted where company revenue comes from: B2B was 87% of it in Jan–Apr 2025; in the same months of 2026, DTC and resale are 67% and B2C grew more than tenfold.
- Built an in-house creator programme instead of hiring an agency: 233 active partners across 25 Brazilian states.
- Rebuilt a landing page: initiated checkout rose from 1.0% to 5.9%, attention on the page from 3.1s to 12.2s.
- Build and maintain 20+ React/TypeScript landing pages, dashboards, GA4 tracking and agent automations.

EXPERIENCE

Commercial thinking. Creative judgement. Hands-on execution.

Selected growth results / Lets Fly

- Reached 5,077 buyers in 598 municipalities across 26 Brazilian states; 15.1% of them bought more than once.
- Found the purchase event firing on order creation instead of payment, which inflated every platform ROAS by about 12%, and the Meta click id being dropped between domains, leaving only 57% of purchases identified. Both fixed in code; contribution margin per landing page is now the budgeting rule.
- Identified an ad driving 29 of 63 purchases on 13% of spend. Fixing its destination helped lift weekly purchases from 34 to 40 and reduce CPA from R$102 to R$95.
- Diagnosed misleading free-shipping copy at checkout. After the change, abandonment in the R$140–150 cart band fell from 53.7% to 30.0%.
